

While Blockchain presents interesting features, it is not a panacea for all problems and it is essential that the costs and benefits are carefully weighed up. For the time being, investment in the technology is something of a gamble, but it is a gamble that many companies feel important to take given the stakes at play.